About Attendance Awareness Month

Monitoring attendance and participation is key to figuring out if students are onboard with lessons or need a little extra push to get there. With absenteeism soaring in Arizona, it's time for mayors, officials, school boards, and superintendents to shine a spotlight on the importance of showing up by declaring September as Attendance Awareness Month.

The following resources are readily adaptable for state leaders and boards, and national as well as local organizations can utilize these template proclamations to distribute across their networks.
