

SECOND CHANCE BREAKFAST

Second Chance Breakfast.

This model can either replace or be served in addition to traditional before-school cafeteria service.

This model works with any grade level: elementary, middle or high school. It is a popular breakfast model for middle or high school as older students are often not hungry early in the morning & tend to arrive closer to the start of the school day.

Challenges & Solutions

CHALLENGE

Students aren't hungry first thing in the morning.

SOLUTION

Make breakfast available in between morning classes when students may be more likely to feel hungry.

CHALLENGE

Sleep is incredibly important for students, but middle and high school often start early, leaving little time for breakfast.

SOLUTION

Offering Second Chance Breakfast allows students to maximize sleep hours, and still get the needed nutrition to be fully Awake, Alert and Ready to Achieve.

CHALLENGE

Students may be late to class if they stop to eat breakfast during a passing period.

SOLUTION

Work with administration to adjust the bell schedule and allow an extra 5 to 10 minutes after first period for a breakfast break.

SOLUTION

Utilize Grab & Go style kiosks placed in high traffic areas so students have quick and easy access to breakfast.

SOLUTION

Work with teachers to allow students to eat in the classroom.
